RECOMMIND PARTNERS WITH ii3 TO IMPLEMENT AWARD-WINNING KNOWLEDGE MANAGEMENT SOLUTIONS

SAN FRANCISCO, CA., October 10, 2006 – Recommind, the leading enterprise search and categorization company, today announced a strategic relationship with Toronto-based ii3, a full-service knowledge management firm, to resell Recommind’s industry-leading MindServer product suite. ii3 will implement Recommind technology in its creation and deployment of knowledge management solutions for knowledge-intensive industries such as legal, financial services, professional services and the public sector.

“We are pleased to announce this partnership between Recommind and ii3,” said Derek Schueren, Recommind co-founder and director of sales. “The relationship will provide ii3’s customer base with best-of-breed products for sophisticated search and categorization, and will allow Recommind to significantly expand its presence in the Canadian and Northern US markets.”

Recommind’s flagship MindServer platform transforms high volumes of discrete files, documents, and records contained in numerous enterprise applications into manageable information relevant to a user’s specific purpose. The MindServer platform delivers breakthrough information access and usability, minimizing the need for costly application integration initiatives, and generating higher return from an organization's existing information stores. Built with Recommind's industry-leading search accuracy and automation capabilities, the latest MindServer release provides users with search-based application integration, multi-level security, and Web 2.0 usability.

"Recommind's powerful and sophisticated search and categorization technology is a natural complement to the results-based knowledge management solutions that ii3 delivers to our customers," said Shy Alter, president and CEO of ii3. "The implementation of the MindServer product suite will provide customers an unparalleled ability to search, manage and use information across the entire organization, enabling them to serve their clients more efficiently and strategically."
